

SAEM Southeast 2020

Clinical Pathologic Case Competition

General Information

This regional CPC event will feature residents presenting an interesting case with faculty discussants working to solve the case with information available during the patient's emergency department stay.

For more information about CPC events, the CORD website has great information on CPC and its purpose. Following all presentations, judges will select a top resident presenter and a top faculty discussant.

How to Apply

Any current emergency medicine resident, including senior residents, may apply. Applications will be accepted online until Monday December 9, 2019. At the time of application, you must submit the PowerPoint presentation of your case.

Please note: You will be allowed to update and polish your presentations prior to the competition, provided you give no additional case information, such as new exam findings or lab results.
